History of Kanazawa Castle and Kenrokuen Garden

The history of Kanazawa Castle and Kenrokuen Garden dates back to 1546, when Kanazawa Mido, a religious school of the Honganji temple was founded. Oda Nobunaga ordered his retainer, Sakuma Morimasa, to build a castle in 1580, and three years later Maeda Toshiie made his entry into Kanazawa Castle. Until 1869 Kanazawa Castle was the residence of the Maeda lord of Kaga Domain for 14 generations. The castle site was used as an army base until the end of World War II, and until 1995 it served as the campus of Kanazawa University. At present it is being transformed into a park where visitors can learn about its bountiful nature and history right in the downtown area.

Kenrokuen Garden is said to have originated when the 5th Lord Tsunanori built the Renchiochin house on the slope facing the castle, and gave its garden the name Renchitei. Later the 12th Lord Narinaga and the 13th Lord Naryasu built an extensive garden which had the basic design of the magnificent landscape garden in the strolling style that we know today. The garden, which has a particular charm in every season, has been designated as a Place of Scenic Beauty. Many people come from all over Japan to enjoy it.

《 Why the name “Kenrokuen”? 》

The garden was named Kenrokuen in 1822, based on Rakuyo Meienki, a classical Chinese book about the famous gardens of Luoyang. It is built around three sets of contrasting garden elements: spaciousness contrasts with seclusion, artifice contrasts with antiquity, and water-courses contrast with panoramas. Thus the name: Ken (“combined”) roku (“six”) en (“garden”).

Places of interest around Kanazawa Castle Park and Kenrokuen Garden

①Hishi yagura, Gojikken nagaya,
Hashizumemon tsuzuki yagura (Turrets & Store house)
These were all restored in July 2001. They form the largest wooden castle structure in Japan that was built since the Meiji period. It is well worth a visit to see the buildings that have been restored using the traditional wooden frame construction method, as well as various models on display.

②Ishikawamon Gate
The present Ishikawamon Gate, which has been designated as a National Important Cultural Property, was rebuilt in 1788. It is the back gate, and of the type referred to as masugatamon, or “box-shaped gateway”. Night-time illumination gives it a particularly magical appearance.

③Hashizumemon Gate
This is the front, and thus highest-status, gate to the Ninomaru enclosure, which consists of a first gate with a relatively simple structure, a masugata (square space) featuring stone walls and double-layered walls, and a second gate with a turret on top. The Hashizumemon Gate was the largest masugata gate on the castle grounds. For a fee, visitors can visit the interior of the second gate.

④Kahokumon Gate
Kahokumon Gate has a masugata (2 gates facing each other at right angles) shape and it essentially functioned as the main gate of Kanazawa castle. Moreover, Kahokumon's secondary gate (ni-no-mon) is the biggest gate of the castle. This gate was restored in April 2010 and the interior view is open to the public.

⑤Gyokusen'inmaru Garden
Named after Gyokusen'in, the wife of Toshinaga, the second feudal lord. In 2015, the garden was rebuilt around the pond, based on its design in the late Edo period (19th century). The Gyokusen'an rest area is located by the pond, where for a small fee visitors can enjoy matcha green tea and Japanese-style confectionery at the tea house.

⑥Kotojitoro Lantern
This lantern is said to have gotten its name from the fact that it is shaped like the bridges that support the strings of a koto. Nijibashi Bridge, which is in front of the lantern, is thought to resemble the body of a koto, and for this reason is sometimes called Kotobashi Bridge.

⑦Karasakinomatsu Pine
This tree was grown by the 13th lord of the Kaga clan from a seed that he obtained from Karasaki in Omi. It is the shapeliest black pine in the garden. The yukizuri ropes used to protect the branches from heavy snow are one of the charming winter sights of the Hokuriku region.

⑧Fountain
The source of this fountain is Kasumigaike Pond, and it operates by natural water pressure resulting from a difference in elevation that creates the approximately 3.5-meter fountain.

⑨Neagarinomatsu Pine
A highlight of Kenrokuen Garden: a pine tree with some 40 or so of its roots sticking out as much as 2 m above the soil's surface. Maeda Naryasu, the 13th lord of the domain, planted a pine sapling in a tall mound of soil to take advantage of the way that pine roots grow near the surface; the soil was cleared away as it grew, to expose the roots.

⑩Shiguretei Tea House
This building was restored in conjunction with the completion of the new garden in 2000. It is used as a tea house and for cultural events. (There is a charge for tea and rental of the building.)
